urban areas and you are doing this for them. At whose cost? At the cost of the farmers. The charity shown by the Government at the cost of the farmers is surprising and this is certainly not a very happy thing. The Government, instead of giving remunerative prices to the farmers for their produce, wants to take away their lands and throw them out of their lands. This is a very very unhappy situation. But I think this must have gone unnoticed by the Government and therefore, no notice of it was taken in the Address. If the Government wants to destroy the rural life in 15 States and 2 Union terriotries in the country, I would like to quote the experiment made by Stalin in 1930 in Russia. He did the same thing. For the purpose of urbanisation, he asked his farmers to go away and the farmers were skilled in farming and their children were experts in agriculture and the knew how to do effective farming. But they were all driven away with the result that agricultural production started falling down right from 1930 up to the present day in Rusia. So, here is the proof. Therefore, I say that if you want to take away their lands, the rural lands, for the sake of urbanisation, you are entitled to do it under the law. But you should give them the market price immediately so that they can try to get lands somewhere else. With 25 per cent in cash and 75 per cent at the expiry of 20 years, what can he do? Do you think he can start a butcher's shop? Suppose, Madam, we Members are asked: All right, you are very good Members, you will be paid 25 per cent of the salary in cash and 75 per cent after 20 years, I think all the Members will say: we don't want this. This is not very happy. Therefore, I wish to draw the attention of the Government, through you, Madam, to this very irritating problem of the urban farmers who are coming close to the city. And, therefore, I suggest that it may be taken into consideration.

Thank you
